PERSONAL SKETCH OF NEVADA'S STATE SENATORS.

The following sketches of Nevada Senators are clipped from letters written to the Gold Hill News from Carson by a correspondent signing himself "Toby Green."

DEMOCRATIC SENATORS.

The Senate has in previous years contained considerable legislative talent and forensic ability; but I think it does not average so well this session, though there are a few men in it of known and marked ability. The hold-overs I know pretty well, having seen them on the floor before; but of the new Senators I can only form impressions, and cannot tell until they open their mouths whether or not any of them are likely to set the Pacific Ocean on fire. Cassidy, of Eureka, is the brains of the Democratic side and the acknowledged leader. He is a newspaper man, and, consequently, smart.
Who ever knew a journalist that was not smart, and likewise good? Therefore it is but fair to presume that Cassidy is good. He is not so truly good, however, but that he will endeavor to get away with every proposition that may favor his party or his friends. He will not let a point in favor of the Democracy slip, even if he is obliged to step outside the strict confines of virtue in order to attain it. He is undoubtedly the brightest Democrat in the Senate—but that's not saying much for him, you know. Creswell, of Nye, one of the new members, will, in my opinion, develop into a pretly fair legislator, or, at the least, a good talker. He comes of a family of lawyers, politicians and bright people generally, and has a bright look on his face. At present he lacks experience; but if he studies his Cushing faithfully, and gets in his oar at the right moment, he will make one of the most brilliant Senators on the floor. There are other Democrats, such as Garrard, of Esmeralda, and Baker, of Eureka, who will do more than their share of the talking; but whether or not they will say anything is an open question. Garrard is good-natured, obtuse, garrulous and harmless.
Baker is ambitious and ungrammatical.
He will make a brilliant Senator if the spectators should conceive for him as high an opinion as he entertains of himself. He will have his finger in every pie that is made in the Senate this session, and the clarion notes of his gentle voice will ring through the Senate Chamber many a time and oft. It will not be his fault if Senator Baker, of Eureka, remains in obscurity. Professor Stewart, of Storey, is popular with those who know him, and will be one of the best meaning Senators on the floor. The trouble with him is that he has hobbies, and is likely to ride them so hard and so long as to tire the witnesses of his equestrian performances. He is more good-natured than political or political; but loves Democracy too well to do anything against the interests of that party. Shultz, of Storey, looks bright, but, being a new member, is inexperienced in the details of legislation.
He speaks with a slight German accent, and gives signs of being active for his side of the question. Stampley, Grimes and Westcott are good voting members and know enough to keep their seats when something not concerning their immediate constituency is before the Senate. They are both industrious, painstaking legislators, but not by any means brilliant. McConnell and Westfield, the other two Democrats, have kept steady thus far, and I have formed no opinion respecting them.

Ross, the Independent, of Washoe, is noted chiefly for being stubborn, and would have been famous had he dictated the organization of the Senate, as he expected to do.
Comins, who, as he disclaims being a Democrat and is disowned by the Republicans, I cannot class under any political head, is a negative whose only claim to distinction is his action in the organization of the Senate, which has already been detailed in these columns.
He is spoken of by his friends as a good sort of a fellow, but of no particular force. His name would probably never have been mentioned, except in his record of eyes and nose, but for his course in the organization. As it is, he has succeeded in getting his name extensively into print.

REPUBLICAN SENATORS.
Senator Edwards is the leader of the Republican side of the Senate. He is a prominent lawyer of Carson and an able man. He is firmly wedded to the principles of his party and will "stand pat" for it on every proposition. He is the hold-over Senator from Ormsby and brings to the Senate the experience acquired on the floor during the last session, besides a large knowledge of matters and things parliamentary, gained by practice in various legislative bodies.
Boardman, the new Senator from Was-ho, is destined, I think, to prove one of the bright members. He is new to the customs and usages of the Senate; but has a voice and look which indicate that he will be a powerful antagonist in debate, and know what he is talking about every time, which is something that cannot be said for every Nevada legislator. Farrell, of Lander, is one of the quiet Senators. He doesn't say anything unless he has something to say, and while he lacks spread-eagle eloquence of expression, he invariably impresses his hearers by the concise and logical manner in which he expresses his ideas on a question. He keeps an eye single on the interests of his constituents, and though quiet and unassuming, never misses a point either on the floor or in the lobby, which latter usually requires more watching than the former. Senator Blair, of Lincoln, is young, and likewise quiet. He served in the lower house during the last session and made an excellent working member, which, I prophesy, he will also be in the Senate this year. One of the ablest Republican Senators is King, of Lyon. He is neither eloquent nor brilliant; but what he lacks in eloquence and brilliancy, he makes up in energy and earnestness. He is sharp as a needle and devoted to his party. Chabbuck, of Storey, is one of the smartest Senators on the floor. He is quick as a flash and smooth as oil; knows what he is about all the time, and is always on the lookout for snags. The Democrats who gets away with Chab. on any proposition, except by means of the clear Democratic majority in the Senate, can take Chab.'s hat. He will give it up cheerfully. Tom Riekey is the hold-over Senator from Douglas. He is a rancher from the ground up and what he doesn't know about live stocks and crops is not worth knowing. He is one of your dead-in-the-fact sort of cusses, and goes for his side of the question with a rush.

He sometimes gets off wrong in a parliamentary sense, but he means well and gives up gracefully when he loses. When he is present, nobody falls into the error that he is absent. They all know that Riekey is there. Piper, of Storey, is one of the solid members. He does not say a great deal, but votes intelligently on every proposition, and does his committee work conscientiously and industri-ously, besides always having on hand some measures for the benefit of Storey county. Stone is the new Senator from Storey [Elko?], whose seat ex-Senator Cohn has a hankering for. He was formerly postmaster of Elko, on which ground Cohn contests his seat, claiming that Stone was not eligible. Mr. Stone is an intelligent, bright looking man but has as yet had no opportunity to show what there is in him. His energies during the session will be directed to squashing Cohn and standing off Cassidy and Baker on the "Mineral Hill bill." Martin, of Ormsby county, concludes the list. No opportunity has been presented for him to show what he amounts to; but from his appearance I judge he will make a good member, and he is young and gentlemanly and apparently bright.
